A NATIONAL SURVEY WAS MADE OF FOREIGN LANGUAGE REQUIREMENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES DURING 1965-66. THE SURVEY FIGURES SHOW THAT ONE COLLEGE IN THREE PRESCRIBES FOREIGN LANGUAGE CREDITS FOR ADMISSION AND THAT NINE OUT OF TEN REQUIRE LANGUAGE FOR GRADUATION WITH A B.A. DEGREE. IN 32 ADDITIONAL COLLEGES CERTAIN NONLANGUAGE DEPARTMENTS MAKE LANGUAGE STUDY A GRADUATION REQUIREMENT FOR THEIR MAJORS. A HALF DOZEN OTHERS GIVE THE STUDENT AN OPTION BETWEEN FOREIGN LANGUAGES AND MATHEMATICS AS A DEGREE REQUIREMENT. IT IS CLEAR FROM THE TOTAL FINDINGS REPORTED IN THIS STUDY THAT THE PAST 10 YEARS HAVE BROUGHT SIGNIFICANT GAINS FOR FOREIGN LANGUAGE IN BOTH SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES. (TC)

FOREWORD

The present report represents the updating and enlargement of three earlier studies conducted for the Modern Language Association: "Foreign Language Entrance and Degree Requirements for the B.A. Degree," by Jeanine Parisier Plottel (PMLA, September 1960); "Foreign Language Entrance and Degree Requirements for the B.S. Degree," by Warren J. Wolfe (PMLA, September 1959); and "Foreign Language Entrance and Degree Requirements for the M.A., M.S., and Ph.D. Degrees," by Claude P. Viens and Philip Wadsworth (PMLA, September 1957).

The staff members who compiled this report acknowledge with gratitude the cooperation of registrars, deans of graduate schools, chairmen of foreign language departments, and other college officials who supplied the data upon which it is based. They also record their thanks to Julia Gibson, who performed much of the tabulation for the section on advanced degrees; to Loran Thompson, who classified and analyzed the data obtained from the questionnaire on placement procedures and proficiency tests; and to Hans Rütimann, Assistant Director of Statistical Research.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS IN COLLEGES THAT GRANT THE B.A. DEGREE

In the national survey of foreign language requirements in American colleges and universities conducted by the Modern Language Association in 1965-1966, replies were received from 1158 institutions that grant the B.A. degree. Foreign language is a requirement for the degree in 1030 (88.9%) of these institutions.

The last previous study of college language requirements, conducted by the MLA in 1960, showed that 772 out of 898 institutions had a foreign language requirement for the B.A. degree—a percentage of 85.9. A still earlier survey, made in 1957, showed that 709 out of 836 institutions (84.8%) had such a requirement.

In sum, during the past ten years the number of colleges granting the B.A. degree has grown from 836 to 1158, or just under 40 percent, while the percentage of institutions requiring foreign language for that degree has increased from 84.8 to 88.9, or just over four percentage points.

Thirteen colleges that do not require foreign language credits for the degree do, on the other hand, prescribe language credits for admission. If these are added to the 1030 colleges that have a language requirement for the degree, the total number of institutions with some sort of language requirement rises to 1043, or 90 percent.

Between 1957 and 1966, the number of colleges requiring foreign language for admission increased from 238 to 389—from 28.5 percent of the total number in 1957 to 33.6 percent in 1966.

The preceding figures show, then, that one college in three prescribes foreign language credits for admission and that nine out of ten require language for graduation with a B.A. degree. In 32 additional colleges certain nonlanguage departments make language study a graduation requirement for their majors. A half dozen others give the student an option between foreign language and mathematics as a degree requirement.

Even though two-thirds of the colleges do not have a definite language requirement for admission, most college catalogs list foreign language as a recommended subject. In order to obtain some notion of the extent to which this recommendation is implemented, a question on this point was included in the survey. Registrars of colleges without an absolute language requirement for entry were asked to give figures, if they had them, on the percentage of students who offer language credits upon entrance. Of the registrars who were able to furnish actual figures or careful estimates, 111 reported that from 95 to 100 percent of their students enter with language credits, and 50 reported that 90 to 94 percent enter with such credits. (In the directory of the 1158 colleges covered by the survey, which begins on page 9 of this report, the registrars' estimates are given school by school. Omission of an estimate means merely that the reporting official did not feel that he could give a valid figure; it is not intended to imply that the figure is low.)

To round out the picture, mention should be made of two additional findings, one of which relates to the high schools and the other to the colleges. In 1954 only 43 percent of the public high schools offered courses in any modern foreign language; by 1964, the percentage had increased to 72, according to the most recent figures of high school language enrollments published by the MLA. That increased language study in the high schools is having a marked impact on college language study is demonstrated by the fact that chairmen of foreign language departments in more than half of the colleges covered by this survey report that the proportion of students enrolled in intermediate and advanced language courses has increased since 1960 (page 28).

As for the amount of language required, where the requirement exists, this remains typically at two high school units for admission and at two years in college for the B.A. degree. In most cases, high school work can be applied toward the college degree requirement.

It is clear from the total findings reported in this study that the past ten years have brought significant gains for foreign languages in both schools and colleges. The two tables which follow present full summaries, arranged by state and region, of trends in college language requirements between 1957 and 1966. The complete directory of the 1158 institutions covered by the portion of the survey that deals with the B.A. degree follows the summaries.

The supplementary lists that follow the directory name the colleges which have dropped or reduced their language requirements since 1960, as well as those which have instituted or increased requirements. It will be noted that 18 colleges have dropped the requirement (four of these now give an option between language and mathematics), while 73 have instituted language as a requirement for the B.A. Seventy-five colleges have decreased the requirement, while 114 have increased it. (Changes of less than two semester hours or the equivalent are not counted, since most such changes are the result of shifting from one credit system to another rather than a change in policy. An increase of two semester hours often means an added two hours in the first year for laboratory work. The pattern of eight hours in the first year and six in the second is a common one.)

FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE B. A. DEGREE, BY STATE AND INSTITUTION: FALL, 1966

KEY

Notations before the semicolon refer to entrance requirements

Notations after the semicolon refer to degree requirements

—— means that the school has no FL requirement

|---|---|---|---|
| FL | Foreign Language | F | French |
| MFL | Modern Foreign Language | G | German |
| CL | Classical Language | It | Italian |
| Lat | Latin | R | Russian |
| Gk | Greek | S | Spanish |
| N | a new language begun in college | / | or |
| s | semester hours | | |
| q | quarter hours | | |

Hs means that the degree requirement may be satisfied wholly or in part by high-school credits

Pl means that placement tests are used to check FL preparation at entrance for assignment to appropriate level in college

Pr means a satisfactory score on a proficiency test min minimum; used to designate the amount of credit that must be earned in college regardless of the number of units completed in high school

% A percentage preceding the semicolon (e.g., 80%) means that the college has no FL entrance requirement but has estimated the proportion of incoming students who have FL credit

\+ A plus sign immediately after the semicolon precedes the amount of credit that must be earned by a student desiring to satisfy his degree requirement in the same language used for entrance

CEEB The College Entrance Examination Board Achievement Test or College Placement Examination in an FL. A number following this designation denotes the minimum score required by the college on one of these tests

EXAMPLES

I. ——; 14sHs means:

a. There is no entrance requirement.
b. The degree requirement is 14 semester hours, which may be reduced by high-school credits.

II. 2u; +6s/N14s means:

a. The FL entrance requirement is two high-school units.
b. In addition to the units presented for entrance, the student must take 6 semester hours of his high-school language in college, or take 14 semester hours of a new language.

III. ——; 15qHsPl/PrCEEB560 means:

a. There is no entrance requirement.
b. The degree requirement may be satisfied by either
   i) 15 quarter hours of a language taken in college, which may be reduced for students with FL background in high school by means of a placement test; or ii) a score of 560 on a CEEB Achievement Test or College Placement Examination in a foreign language.

FL ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS: B. A.

IV. 75%; 0-16s/Pr means:

a. There is no entrance requirement. Approximately 75% of all incoming students have FL credit.
b. There is no general degree requirement. Requirements of individual departments range from none to 16 semester hours. Departmental requirements may also be met by a satisfactory score on a proficiency examination.

V. 2u; +6s+Pr means:

a. The FL entrance requirement is two high-school units.
b. Six additional semester hours must be taken in college in the same language. A satisfactory score on a proficiency examination is also necessary to fulfill the degree requirement.

VI. 3u/2u+2u;—— means:

a. Incoming students must have completed three high-school units in one language, or two units in each of two languages.
b. There is no degree requirement.

VII. MFL2u+CEEB; MFL:12sHs means:

a. The FL entrance requirement is two high-school units of a modern language in addition to a satisfactory score on a CEEB Achievement Test in the same language (The College Placement Examination is administered only by colleges).
b. The degree requirement is 12 semester hours of a modern language, which may be reduced for students with sufficient training in high school.

PLACEMENT PROCEDURES; PROFICIENCY TESTS; FL TRENDS

The following report is based on information furnished by foreign-language department chairmen. A three-page questionnaire dealing with placement procedures for students presenting secondary-school FL credits upon entrance to college, proficiency examinations for B.A. degree candidates, and trends in FL teaching at the college level was sent to chairmen at 1158 colleges and universities in fall 1965. Returns were received from 927 institutions, or 80% of the total. In cases where more than one chairman responded from the same institution, the information was combined and only one tabulation was made for the institution. The data in this report, therefore, should be considered in the context of the total number of institutions (N=927) from which completed questionnaires were received.

Placement. The first division of the questionnaire deals with placement procedures. Chairmen were requested to complete Section 1 if students at their institution are placed in language courses wholly on the basis of their high-school records, or in Section 2 if other procedures are used. In cases where chairmen completed both sections, only their responses to Section 2 were tabulated.

It was clear from the response that the majority of colleges and universities no longer use high-school FL credits as their sole basis for placement. Only 334 (36% of N) place on the basis of high-school records, and half of these take into consideration grades earned on the high-school FL courses. Approximately nine out of ten colleges in this group use the traditional formula of two years high school work as the equivalent of one year of college. A few use three years high school as equal to one year of college.

The remaining 593 colleges (64% of N) employ some form of testing or interviewing for placement. Testing at many institutions is limited to a reading examination.

Three published reading tests were listed most frequently: the MLA Cooperative FL Test, the CEEB Achievement Test, and the "ETS Test." These last two call for a note of explanation. The College Board issues two series of tests: the Achievement Test, administered nationally under the supervision of the Educational Testing Service to high-school students, and the College Placement Examination ("Form KPE"), distributed to colleges and universities for on-campus use. Since the two forms are versions of the same test, no distinction is made in this report between them; hereafter the term "Achievement Test" will be used to designate either of these tests. The expression "ETS Test" or "Princeton Coop," as used by a number of chairmen, can refer to more than one test. When ETS began publishing the MLA Coop in 1963, it discontinued its old series of FL cooperative tests and recommended that users of this battery change to the MLA tests. Since the standardized tests can be used indefinitely, however, a number of institutions have continued to use the obsolete series. Since a blank was included for the MLA Cooperative FL Test on the questionnaire, it can be assumed that the majority of those listing "ETS" refer to the outdated battery.

The following chart summarizes the extent of testing for each of the four basic skills in the 927 institutions covered. All percents are calculated on the base of the total 927.

Reading is tested in 649 colleges (70% of N)

| Tests used | No. of colleges | % of total |
|---|---|---|
| CEEB | 195 | 21 |
| MLA Coop | 222 | 24 |
| "ETS" | 93 | 10 |
| Unpublished | 139 | 15 |

Writing, tested in 334 colleges (36% of N)

| Tests used | No. of colleges | % of total |
|---|---|---|
| MLA Coop | 195 | 21 |
| Unpublished | 139 | 15 |

Listening comprehension, tested in 520 colleges (56% of N)

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| CEEB | 111 | 12 |
| MLA Coop | 195 | 21 |
| Interview | 130 | 14 |
| Unpublished | 84 | 9 |

Speaking ability, tested in 296 colleges (32% of N)

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| MLA Coop | 111 | 12 |
| Interview | 148 | 16 |
| Unpublished | 37 | 4 |

In the item on the CEEB Advanced Placement Examinations, 204 chairmen (22% of N) reported that advanced placement is granted on the basis of these tests, and 167 (18% of N) indicated that degree credit is given. (Institutions stating that they would probably give placement or credit, but had "so far not faced the situation" are not included in these figures. Those replies which did not include a minimum score were also left untabulated.) Sixty-five percent of the institutions that grant placement require a minimum score of 3; 18% require a 4. The average score required for degree credit is slightly higher: 54% of those giving degree credit require a 3, while 39% require a 4. An insignificant number require a 2 or a 5 in each case. Because the distribution of the AP tests is limited (only 4492 students took an exam in an FL in 1966), it is understandable that relatively few institutions have formulated a policy.

The question of credit for students whose test scores place them in courses at a lower level than that for which their high-school preparation should theoretically qualify them is handled in various ways. Over half (57%) of the chairmen responding to an inquiry on this point reported that their institutions grant full credit to such students, a quarter (27%) give no credit, and the remainder give partial credit.

Almost a fifth of the chairmen plan to make more extensive use of placement tests in the future. Eight percent indicated that they plan to start using, or use more parts of, the MLA Cooperative FL Tests. An equal number indicated interest in introducing placement tests but did not specify the tests under consideration. Three percent plan to use the reading and/or listening comprehensive sections of the CEEB Achievement Test or College Placement Examination.

Proficiency Tests. Division B of the questionnaire was to be completed only in cases where candidates for bachelor's degrees are required to pass a proficiency test in foreign language. This question was completed by 139 institutions, about 15% of the total. Fifty-two percent of the colleges that require a test in reading ability use their own tests; 32% use an MLA test. The others use the College Placement Examination of the CEEB, the obsolete ETS cooperative tests, or the Graduate Record Examination.

Fewer than a tenth of the reporting colleges require proficiency tests in writing, listening comprehension, or speaking ability. Most of these colleges test writing ability with unpublished tests. The test used most extensively for listening comprehension is the MLA Coop. Speaking ability is usually tested by means of an interview.

A fifth of the institutions that require proficiency tests report that the CEEB Advanced Placement Examinations may be substituted, wholly or in part, for the proficiency examination; the Advanced Placement exam can fully satisfy the degree requirement at 72% of these colleges. In this case again, the minimum score at most institutions is a 3; 30% require a 4.

Trends in FL Teaching. In the final group of questions, chairmen were asked to indicate changes in course offerings, in course content, and in teaching approach over the past six years. Seven hundred fourteen (77% of N) noted that a higher proportion of students now study foreign languages at the intermediate and advanced levels. This situation reflects the increased study of languages in the secondary schools and the consequent increase in the number of students who enter college with three or four years of language study.

The main shift of emphasis is clearly toward the audio-lingual approach. Three hundred ninety chairmen (42% of N) report an increased stress on listening comprehension, and 417 (45% of N) indicate a greater emphasis on speaking ability. Almost a tenth of the colleges reported that they have introduced remedial courses for students who enter with inadequate training in reading, writing, or audio-lingual skills.

Ninety-three institutions (10% of N) report giving increased attention to literature and civilization below advanced level courses. Twenty-two colleges are experimenting with courses in nonlanguage fields (e.g., history, art) conducted in a foreign language.

As in the 1959 study, the term "B.S. degree" is meant to refer to the liberal arts degree frequently granted to students who graduate with a major in science or mathematics. It does not refer to specialized degrees such as the B.S. in Business Administration, in Education, or in Home Economics. (The existence of scores of such specialized degrees makes it impossible to compile meaningful data on general requirements for each of them. See the statement at the end of this section for additional information on these degrees.)

According to the figures in the preceding chart, 481 colleges, or 54.9 percent of those conferring the liberal arts B.S., now require FL for the degree. Twenty colleges that lack the degree requirement prescribe language for entrance. This brings the total with some kind of FL requirement to 501, or 57 percent of the total. In some 30 colleges that do not have the general requirement, individual departments may prescribe FL as a degree requirement for their majors. A half dozen colleges give the student an option between FL and mathematics or statistics.

Since the 1959 survey indicated that 69.2 percent of the 568 colleges offering the B.S. at that time required FL for the degree, it appears that a drop of about 14 percent has occurred in the interim. An analysis of the colleges covered by the 1966 survey suggests that most of the drop is due to lower FL requirements of the 389 colleges that have been organized since the earlier survey or that have begun to offer the general bachelor's degrees since that date.

Of the 489 colleges included in both the 1959 and 1966 surveys, 81 have increased their FL requirement for the B.S., 69 have decreased it, and 339 have retained it unchanged. A large proportion of the new institutions were formerly teachers colleges. It seems fair to conclude that many of them have not substantially changed the requirements that they had for the B.S. in Education, for which foreign language is not generally a requirement.

In the survey, an attempt was made to gather information on FL requirements for the specialized B.S. degrees, but the wide range of titles and the difficulty of classifying the data in a meaningful way led to exclusion of these degrees from the body of the study. The following summary statement indicates the principal findings: Business degrees at the bachelor's level were reported by 201 institutions; 17 percent of these have an FL requirement for the degree. Various bachelor's degrees in education were listed by 409 colleges; 19 percent have a language requirement. Degrees relating to music totalled 203, and 53 percent of these have a language requirement. Of 175 degrees relating to engineering, eight percent carry a language requirement. Fine arts degrees numbered 88; a third of these require language. The number of degrees in other fields ranged downward to 27 in agriculture, for which one had an FL requirement, and 26 in architecture, of which four carried an FL requirement. Scattered figures from other fields brought the total number of degrees covered to 1,385, with an over-all figure of 23 percent prescribing FL for the degree.

FOREIGN LANGUAGE ENTRANCE AND DEGREE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE B.S. DEGREE, BY STATE AND INSTITUTION: FALL 1966

Note: The symbols and abbreviations used in this section are identical with those used in the description of the language requirements for the B.A. degree; see page 7 for the key.

"B.S. degree" as used in this roster refers only to the four-year liberal arts science degree, that is, the degree awarded by many colleges to liberal arts students who major in science or mathematics.

The treatment of data for the B.A. and B.S. degree is identical except that registrars' estimates of the proportion of students who present foreign language credit upon entrance to colleges with no formal language requirement for admission are recorded only in the B.A. roster. For any given institution, however, the estimate applies equally to all entering students, whether they follow the curriculum leading to the B.A. or the B.S. The estimates are omitted from the B.S. roster in order to avoid needless duplication.

FL Requirements for Master's Degrees

Information on FL requirements for master's degrees was received from 322 institutions. Of these, 39 do not require language. Of the remainder, 53 have a uniform requirement for the M.A. and the M.S., 77 have a uniform requirement for the M.A., and 19 for the M.S. In 134 institutions, however, only some departments have a language requirement. Two hundred eight of the institutions covered by the survey also offer the Ph.D. degree, leaving 114 whose graduate program extends only through the master's degree level.

Typically, the requirement is a reading knowledge of one FL. Fifty-five accept any one FL, 35 specify French or German, and 25 permit a choice of any one from a group of three or four. In the remaining institutions the choice of language is left to the individual department.

One hundred thirty-five institutions require an examination to test reading knowledge. In other schools, course work in the language is acceptable.

Six universities reported a requirement of two languages for the master's degree.

Highlights of the 1965 Survey of FL Requirements for the Ph.D. Degree

1. The survey covered 208 universities, an increase of about 70 percent over the 121 that were included in the 1957 survey conducted by the MLA.

2. A quarter of the graduate schools (64) have revised their FL degree requirements since 1957. The revisions have led to greater flexibility and more freedom of choice on the part of the doctoral candidate or of his department in the languages that may be offered in fulfillment of the requirement.

3. Ninety graduate schools offer the student a choice of any two languages from a group of three or more. In 42 schools, the candidate may choose two from French, German, and Russian. In 15 others, the choice is extended to include Spanish. The remainder permit an even wider choice, specifying only that the languages must have relevance to the candidate's field of study.

4. Fewer than 40 schools insist on French and German as the only acceptable languages. Some specify French or German plus one other, or permit substitution of another language for French or German by petition.

5. All but eleven of the 208 universitites have an FL requirement for the degree. In nine of the eleven, only some departments have the requirement; one school requires no language beyond the master's degree and one is still in process of evolving its requirement.

6. Seventeen universitites require only one FL. An additional 52 permit substitution of another subject for one of the two languages where relevance of the substitute subject can be shown. The substitutes include statistics, mathematics, and computer science. Occasionally a strong minor in the student's field of concentration may be used in lieu of one language.

7. Language proficiency is most often verified by a reading examination. Thirty-seven schools report the use of the foreign language examinations of the Educational Testing Service. Course work or undergraduate language credit may be accepted in 57 universities in lieu of the reading examination.

8. Seventeen schools offer the candidate a choice between presenting a thorough comprehension of one language and a reading knowledge of two.

EXPLANATION OF COLUMNS AND SYMBOLS

MASTER'S DEGREE (Columns 2-5)

Column 2: Degree Requirement. "D" indicates a uniform FL requirement for both MA and MS; "D*" means all departments granting the MA and MS have an FL requirement, but it is not always the same for each. When "MA" or "MS" is specified, a uniform requirement exists only for that degree; "S" means that only some departments have the requirement. "MA*" or "MS*" means all departments have an FL requirement but it is not always the same for each. A dash enclosed in parenthesis (—) means no requirement.

Column 3: The Language in the Uniform Degree Requirement. "1L" means one modern foreign language is called for, with the choice left to the student; "F/G" means that the student must present either French or German. Note that where only some departments have a requirement ("S" in Col. 1) no language listing appears in Column 2.

Column 4: Satisfying the Degree Requirement. "R" means the student must pass a reading exam; "C" means that the student need only present a certain amount of language course work or undergraduate credit.

Column 5: The Year of Most Recent Revision of FL Requirement.

PH.D. DEGREE (Columns 6-10)

Column 6: Uniformity of Degree Requirement. "D" means that all department granting the PhD degree have the same requirement; "D*" means all departments have an FL requirement, but it is not always the same for each.

Column 7: The Languages in the Degree Requirement. "FG" means that French and German are specifically required; "F/G + 1" means French or Gorman, plus one other language; "2L" means two unspecified languages; "oth" means (1) the uniform FL requirement is other than one of those already identified, or (2) in special cases the student may substitute another language for one of those specified in the requirement. 1A/2R means one language, active knowledge (full comprehension: aural, reading and speaking), or two languages with only reading knowledge.

Column 8: Satisfying the Degree Requirement. "R" means that the student must pass a reading exam; "C" means the institution accepts course work or undergraduate credit in foreign languages as satisfaction for the requirement. "T" following directly after "R" means "Educational Testing Service."

Column 9: Substitution of Non-language Work for One FL. "s" means one of the required languages may be waived in favor of certain course work integrated with the major field of the student (e.g., statistics for a psychology major). However, this substitution may not pertain to all departments. Where there is no substitution allowed, the letter "n" appears.

Column 10: The Year of Most Recent Revision of FL Requirement.

OTHER SYMBOLS AND ABBREVIATIONS

— A dash not enclosed in parentheses in any column means incomplete information or no information.

Abbreviations for languages: F, French; G, German; Gk, Greek; It, Italian; Lat, Latin; Rs, Russian; S, Spanish.
